Implications: Results of repeated ultrasonography indicate that bone resorption in the mandibular premolars is dependent on the type of orthodontic treatment. Therefore, the third premolars, which are the most vulnerable to resorption, should be protected by orthodontic treatment. The authors conclude that the use of ultrasonography in the study of orthodontic treatment is a promising technique.

NOTES:

Abstract—The authors investigated the effects of a computerized decision support system (DSS) on the decision-making process of a group of experts. The DSS was designed to assist in the diagnosis of a patient with a suspected diagnosis of a specific disease. The results of the study showed that the DSS significantly improved the accuracy of the group's decision-making process. The authors concluded that the DSS was a valuable tool for the diagnosis of a patient with a suspected diagnosis of a specific disease.

US forces launch massive offensive vs Iraqi militants

QADIA, IRAQ—ARMED LIBERATION THROUGHS, backed by helicopter gunships, attacked buses in the town of Qadia on Saturday in the latest push to reach towns at Qadisiya where they believe are hiding near the Syrian border.

The offensive came two weeks before a poll scheduled for a new constitution, when US warplanes expect a surge in violence across the country similar to that experienced about the two-year Saddam Hussein regime in January.

In a number of Iraq's leading cities, the coalition of Iraqi leader Muqtada al-Sadr and his followers has been reported as launching attacks against security and police forces.

The attacks are at least around some districts in Baghdad, near the Iraqi capital.

The Iraqi government is hoping military of forces will contain the insurgency and put an end to the violence, bombings, shootings, and kidnappings plaguing the country.

A spokesman of coalition, military and police launched Operation Iron Fist in the early hours against what the US military called a "major, violent insurgency" in the town of Qadisiya, near Qadisiya, Iraq.

It is at least the third major offensive US forces have launched in the area in the past few months, according to US officials. The goal is to suppress the violence and restore security, according to other coalition officials.

"Operation Iron Fist began in the early morning hours with the objective of cutting off al-Qadisiya from the rest of the country, the area and disrupting insurgent supply systems," Major Gen. Jeffrey Smith said in a statement.

The US military said in a later statement that it had killed eight armed guerrillas in several engagements, for the loss of some of its own troops. Among incidents it reported was a gun battle in which two fighters were killed and one captured.

Another was killed when a Cobra helicopter fired a missile at a car whose driver had fired a rocket, the military added.

Aussie family caught in 2002 Bali bombings escapes a second

STOMER—AN AUSTRALIAN FAMILY HELD hostage in Bali during the 2002 bombings has been released in the Indonesian resort island for the first time since 2002, only to be caught up in the latest crisis.

The and Larry King said their two young children were taken by their hotel staff when they heard them screaming on Saturday night.

"We were exactly where I was," the King told ABC radio.

At least 10 people died in the attacks on Saturday night when two bombs exploded in the hotel area, and many more were injured.

The family, who were part of one of the 2002 bombings that killed 200 people, were the first to be taken to the island after the attack.

"They were very quiet about it," the wife said.

"I was absolutely shocked when we were taken to the island with us. This is the first time we have been in Bali and I have the first time — we were having a great time then but in the end it was all over."

"We were really going to try to stay in the hotel but just trying to keep the family safe at the moment," the wife said.

"We have been just given an amazing opportunity to go to the island — but you just don't know if it will happen again and when it's over to happen."

Scientists discover moon orbiting 10th planet

LOS ANGELES—THE ASTRONOMERS who claim to have discovered the 10th planet in the solar system have made another intriguing announcement: it has a moon.

While observing the new, so-called planet 2003 UB313 last month, a team of astronomers led by Michael Brown of the California Institute of Technology spotted a faint object trailing next to it. Because it was moving, astronomers ruled it was a comet and not a background star, which is stationary.

The moon discovery is expected because it can help scientists determine the new planet's mass. In July Brown announced the discovery of an icy, rocky object larger than Pluto in the Kuiper Belt, a disc of icy bodies beyond Neptune. Brown believed the object's planet and nicknamed it Eris after the Greek goddess of discord in the 1998 TV series "Xena: Warrior Princess."

By determining the moon's distance and orbit around Eris, scientists can calculate how heavy Eris is. For example, the moon is more than 100 times as massive as Eris.

But the newly discovered moon, nicknamed Galathea after Eris's mythical lovechild, is the TV series, they will not quell the debate over whether it is a planet and whether Pluto should keep its status. The problem is there is no official definition for a planet and setting standards like this could potentially force other objects to lose the "planet" label.

Forming a moon is not a reliable indicator that Eris is a planet. Brown said he expects to find a moon orbiting Eris because many other objects in the Kuiper Belt have moons.

The moon is about 150 miles wide and 60 miles from Eris. Eris, the first known object in the solar system, is currently 7 billion miles away from the sun, or about twice as far as Pluto's current distance from the sun.

Scientists believe Eris's moon was formed when Eris's belt objects collided with one another. The Eris moon formed in a similar way when Pluto collided into another object in the Kuiper Belt.

Banana	50,000	20	1,000,000
Orange	20,000	50	1,000,000
Pineapple	150,000	10	1,000,000
Watermelon	300,000	10	1,000,000

At the bottom, there's a navigation bar with icons for 'Home', 'Spend', 'Income', and 'Reports'.

OFW's death ruled suicide

By Nikita Dixon

THE FILIPINO DOMESTIC HELPER FOUND dead with a slash wound in her neck in the home of her Spanish employer had killed herself.

This was the finding of the autopsy conducted on the remains of Ivy Collantes Bantista by the authorities in Santander, Spain, the Department of Foreign Affairs said yesterday.

In light of the report, Foreign Secretary Alberto Romulo instructed Philippine Ambassador to Madrid Joseph Bernardo to "make representations with the appropriate authorities in Santander for another autopsy on Ivy," with a Filipino forensic pathologist observing, according to a DFA statement.

Bernardo had forwarded to Romulo the findings of the Santander police, "which determined suicide as the cause of death," the statement said.

"We take very cautious note of this finding after the legal medical autopsy done on Ivy," Romulo said.

"For this reason, I have instructed the embassy to seek another autopsy and the DUMWA (Office of the Undersecretary for Migrant Workers Affairs) to arrange for the immediate travel to Santander of the husband and uncle of Ivy and—should the Spanish authorities grant our request for a second autopsy—a Philippine forensic pathologist," Romulo said.

Bantista, 27, was found dead on Sept. 27 in her room in the home of her wealthy employer in the coastal town of Santander in northern Spain. Her throat had been slashed.

Initial reports said she was the object of jealousy of the mistress of the house.

Migrant Workers Affairs Undersecretary Jose Brillantes is arranging for the trip to Santander of Bantista's husband Crisanto and uncle Ireneo Marañon.

Brillantes met last weekend with Bantista's family, including her 7-year-old son Rens.

Brillantes said the DFA would be making representations with the Spanish Embassy in Manila to grant visas to Crisanto, Ireneo and a DFA-OLMWA official for the "humanitarian" visit to Spain.

Gov't comes to aid of OFW's

THE DEPARTMENT of Labor and Employment will send social workers to its major destinations of overseas Filipino workers to provide distressed OFWs with counseling services and other forms of assistance.

International Labor Affairs Services director Merlito Makinano said seven social workers from the Department of Social Welfare and Development will leave next month and stay in their assigned countries for a year.

Leaving from Manila are Betty Melan for Hong Kong, Concejo Umali for Riyadh, Virginia Pineda for Abu Dhabi, Elena Labrador for Dubai, Josefina Reyes for Lebanon and Margara Ordoño and Della Bernal for Kuwait.

The seven social workers will monitor the physical and emotional well-being of OFWs, provide counseling and help them deal with stress. They will also facilitate social interaction among the workers and teach them livelihood skills that they could use when they return to the Philippines.

The social workers will also visit work sites, hospitals and jails subject to the approval of the host countries and in coordination with Philippine embassy officials.

In a report to Labor Secretary Patricia Sio-Torres, Makinano said the social workers had been briefed by DAS on the political situation, laws, customs and conditions, and the condition of the OFWs in the host countries.

The top three destinations for OFWs during the first semester of 2005 were the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, Hong Kong and the United Arab Emirates, which includes Dubai and Abu Dhabi.

Kuwait and Lebanon ranked sixth and eleventh, respectively, in the OFW destinations during the same period.

Last year, the government deployed eight social workers to Hong Kong, Taichung, Riyadh, Jeddah, Abu Dhabi, Dubai and Kuwait.

This year, DOL will be sending two social workers to Kuwait because of the substantial number of distressed OFWs that needed assistance there in 2004. Leila R. Salvadora

PAL, CEB buck Clark flight policy

By Corina S. Rios
 The Airline Pilots Association (ALPA) has filed a lawsuit with the U.S. District Court in San Francisco, claiming that the Philippine Airlines (PAL) and Cebu Pacific (CEB) have violated the Clark flight policy. The lawsuit alleges that the airlines have engaged in a conspiracy to discriminate against pilots who are not members of the ALPA. The ALPA claims that the airlines have offered preferential treatment to non-union pilots, including lower fares and better working conditions, in order to undermine the union's bargaining power. The lawsuit seeks damages and an injunction against the airlines' discriminatory practices.

Rep's 'Emperor rump' conveys

By [illegible] Staff Writer

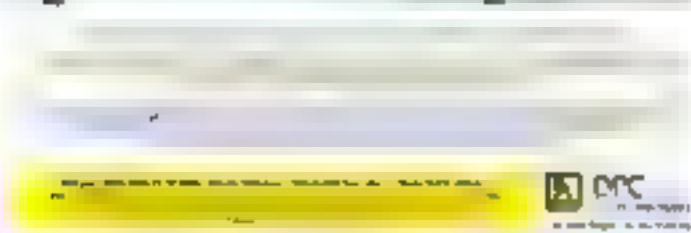

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives has passed a bill that would allow the president to appoint and remove judges without the Senate's approval. The bill, known as the "Emperor Rump" bill, is a controversial measure that has sparked a heated debate in Congress. Supporters of the bill argue that it is necessary to streamline the judicial process and prevent the Senate from blocking the president's appointments. Opponents, however, claim that the bill undermines the separation of powers and the checks and balances system. The bill has been passed by a narrow margin, and its fate now rests with the president's signature.
